

Weekend for Peace and Justice

August 24-26th, 2007

Kennebunk and Kennebunkport, ME

Inspire! Educate! Network! Unite! Empower!

PROGRAM & SCHEDULE

Friday NOON to 5 PM

CHECK-IN @ CAMP ALEX

5:30 PM

Dinner is served at the UU church on Main St. in Kennebunk at 5:30.

Meet speakers and special guests then join us for the CONCERT for PEACE with Emma's Revolution, Dave Rovics, Pat Scanlon and Band and Keenan Beaudette at 8:00.

Saturday Night

for those who love to dance

Political HIP HOP artist S.O.N. of NUN from Baltimore will be performing (location tba)

Sunday Morning 9:30am to 11:30am

The Beehive Collective presents:

Dismantling Monoculture, An Illustrated Narrative

The Beehive Collective is an all-volunteer, art-activist workshop that has gained international attention and participation for its collaboratively produced graphics campaigns focused on globalization and militarization. With a huge portable mural of an elaborately illustrated poster, a six foot tall fabric storybook, and an engaging narrative...the Bees will take you on an interactive visual tour of the connections between COLONIZATION, MILITARIZATION, and RESOURCE EXTRACTION in Latin America. Join in as they deconstruct the complex and overwhelming issues that are shaping our world using metaphors and bio-regionally accurate depictions of animals and insects ...it's a storytelling picture-lecture to be understood by anyone, not just the experts and political analysts!

more info at:

pollinators@beehivecollective.com
www.beehivecollective.org/english

"Where do we go from here? Scholars and Activists in Dialogue"

with Richard Hudak

While at times it has been useful to distinguish amongst peace activism, peace studies and peace education, these endeavors have been linked in specific ways. At this juncture, it seems wise for peace activists to pause and take stock, and for scholars to refocus on practical and immediate concerns. Those of us who stand between the worlds of scholarship and activism have a unique ability and therefore bear a unique responsibility to engage in peace education by convening and facilitating dialog between these worlds. Please join in sharing conceptions of war, occupation, conflict and its resolution, peace, nonviolent action and peace movement strategy. Let such dialogue not only end this war, but also build a culture of peace.

Richard Hudak

Adjunct Professor, University of Massachusetts Lowell and Endicott College

Member of Merrimack Valley People for Peace

Ph.D. In Sociology, Boston College (1996)

B.A. In Sociology and Peace Studies,

Manhattan College (1984)

CAMP ALEX
CAMP ALEX
CAMP ALEX